THE PRESIDENT SEZ
Ty Ozgen, President

Dinosaurs are alive and well! I know what you are thinking..... “Come on Ty, this is 2014 and everyone knows that they have been extinct for millions of years.” That’s what I used to think too but after a recent event I witnessed, I care to disagree. It was a regular day this past March. The sun was out but it was still on the cooler side as I drove home from work that afternoon. It had been an uneventful day, or so I thought. I pulled into the garage like I always do and proceeded to get out, wondering what my wife had made for dinner. I shut the car door and proceeded to walk toward the garage door and then I saw it. Something had exploded on the top of my car. It was a brownish glob, almost like dirt, maybe about 5 inches in diameter that extended to the left rear door and onto the rear wheel. It was disgusting. I had never seen anything like this. Did someone throw a mudball at me? I did not hear a thump. Was it a bird? If it was, this was no ordinary bird dropping. This was something totally different. It must be a creature of unusual proportions. Then it hit me, it must have been a pterodactyl! Nothing else makes sense. I did not recall any large objects flying overhead when I was driving but must have targeted me for some reason. Was my car too clean? Did it think it was prey? Hmm. I immediately pulled the car back out and rinsed it off before it had time to eat into the paint. Again, it was disgusting. Fortunately I did not note any dents on the roof as it must have weighed a few pounds. In retrospect, I wish I had taken a picture of it or perhaps collected a sample of this excrement for analysis at a lab or something. Oh well, too late now but my eyes are also in the sky now as I drive.

We had a great ZGM this month and it was very well attended. We had several new members join us and I invite them to write a little article with a picture of their Z so we can get to know them better. It does not have to be extensive. Jeff has set a wide array of things to do this year and I am really looking forward to these, especially after the winter we had. My Zs have not come out yet but I hope to get them out of their winter hibernation by the end of the month. It has been a long six months since I drove them.

I have to tell you about a story that my office workers found amusing. I don’t know about you but I usually have a location I like to park at when I go to work. It is way in the back, away from everyone, in a corner of the lot. No one else really parks there and the office kind of knows it as my spot since I have been doing this for over 18 years now. This past winter this spot was occupied with piles of snow. I guess it was a convenient location for the plows to push the snow and as you know, we had a lot of snow. Anyway, I was parking near this snow pile but now with the weather improving, it has all melted. However, all was not good. This area was full of rocks and debris that was left behind and I was hesitant to park there for fear of a sharp object that may puncture a tire although there was nothing obvious. So what would I do? The rain would not wash it away, unless there was a torrential downpour. So what did I do? I brought a broom. I left it in the trunk and after work one day I swept all the debris away from my parking area. My area was now reasonably clean to park for the next morning. The best part, no one saw me doing it. Is that normal behavior?

See you at the next event. ~ Ty

Last month as I wrote this column on Saturday morning March 8, the snow was coming down again. Today as I start this column it is April 15 and there a few snowflakes in the air. In fact this morning there was an inch of snow on the grassy areas from last night. Seems like winter just won't give up. However, both Friday and Saturday were wonderful with 60s and 70s and I finally was able to break out the Zs for the first time this year. The weekend before, we had what seemed to be a record turnout of about 22 people for the WCZC general meeting. On April 19, we visited Iron Gate Motor Condos Showroom. The actual condos will start this Spring, with first availability expected in August. It is a very cool concept of a condo that is garage space with a loft above that can be turned into a "man cave". See the photos for a good idea of what the finished product could look like. They sponsor a "Cars and Chrome" event the first Saturday of every month, if you would like to get out there (see below). Following the info session, a number of us went to Two Brothers Brewing in Warrenville for lunch.

As always keep an eye on www.windycityzclub.com and our windy city z club facebook page for info and updates for the following events:
