

THE PRESIDENT SEZ
Jeff Pleiter, President

It is mid-summer now and we are at the point where the temperatures average the highest and the events continue to be fast and furious. Allie and I attended the Midwest Z Heritage Event that was held in Dublin, Ohio. Up to a week before the event, I feared a forecast in the 90s would be a repeat of the last Z Heritage event in Dublin when it was over 100 degrees and you could not spend much time outside. Fortunately, the forecasted temps dropped during the week approaching the event, and it turned out to be a beautiful summer weekend with high temps in the 80s. The fastest route to Dublin is to take I-65 south to I-70 west. We decided to divert off I-65 at Route 30 and make our way east and south, following some highways and some back roads using Waze. The route was more scenic than the highway route, but took a little longer. We arrived just in time that evening to pick up our registration packet.

The event was held, as it was last time when hosted by ZROC, as a show within a show in conjunction with the Arthritis Foundation Charity car show. Friday night was a cruise-in, and show cars could pretty much park anywhere that night. One of the featured cars for the Arthritis Foundation Show was Nissan's own Z32 Nissan 300ZX. This resulted in a location for all the Z cars right in the featured parking lot in front of the main stage. The stage featured great bands both Friday night and Saturday night that covered classic rock from the 50's to 70's with a few forays into more modern music. Friday night after getting reacquainted with some of the Ohio ZROC people, we grabbed sandwiches provided by ZROC and then sat down and enjoyed the music during the beautiful summer evening.

The next day was the main car show, and 2000+ antique, classics, hot rods, muscle cars, exotics, and pretty much any other special interest car you could think of were re-parked in their assigned areas. While the Arthritis show judging went on around the rest of the site, ZROC judged the Midwest Z Heritage show. Meanwhile, we could checkout the other show cars, and also three Nissan race cars that Nissan Corporation had provided at their expense from their Heritage Collection. There ended up being about 54 or so Z cars present. Being in the featured area brought a lot of exposure to Z Cars and the Z car community to the general car enthusiasts. Allie and I were parked next to Mic and Jo Wildin who had also brought their 280ZX from Indy, and George Furbush from WCZC with his 280ZX.

The evening included a dinner with the usual raffle prizes and trophy presentation. There was a minor hitch when it turned out that while ZROC had ordered enough trophies, they had not anticipated the walk-ins and did not have enough plates to put on the trophies. The three WCZC cars that attended each won a trophy. George took first place and I second in stock 280ZX, and Lee Klem took a 3rd place against some tough competition in 1st generation modified. Following the dinner, Allie and I decided to go out and join the group watching Saturday night's band. Sunday we took the faster route home following the highways and made good time.

At the dinner, ZROC awarded the traveling trophy to Nissan for bringing in the 3 race cars all the way for Nashville at their cost. Now the intent of the traveling trophy was to go to a non-host ZCCA club based on points awarded based on club car participation and trophies won. It was suggested to me that I should protest this award, but instead I talked to them later while watching the band about their decision, especially since WCZC only had managed to bring three cars to the event. The thing was the Cleveland club and the Indy also had similar low attendance. Talking to the ZROC president and other officers later in the evening, they said they had decided to award the traveling trophy to Nissan based on the effort and cost that Nissan had expended to get three Heritage cars to the event, and to make a point about the low participation from the non-host Z Clubs. Frankly I could not blame him for that, since I was really disappointed by the lack of cars from our club. Indy had one car and their events person here with his family without a Z car. I don't know how many cars Cleveland had, but I think it was also about 3 cars. Really, if we are going to keep this event going, we need to participate in each other's host events to keep it alive. Recently, Lee Piven the President of ZROC did contact me to let us know that the traveling trophy was coming to WCZC based on participation and trophy placement. I know that some pressure was put on him from others.

The following weekend was the Road America Vintage event with a lunch presented by Hagerty Insurance. I'll let Larry cover this event as I was out in San Diego with Allie where she was awarded her pin from the Romance Writers Association for publishing 25 books. As part of this trip to California we decided to fly in early to San Francisco and take a few days to drive down along the Pacific Coast Highway. I don't have a bucket list, but this would have been on it if I did.

Arriving in San Francisco we drove out along the coast a short distance and stayed in Santa Cruz. We eat at Shadowbrook Restaurant at the recommendation of the hotel clerk. This was a very scenic restaurant on the side of a bluff along a small river. I was not impressed by the seafood campanella I had, but this place was more about the ambiance. This is a place where locals go for special occasions, anniversaries, proposals, etc. A gondola takes you down the bluff to get to the restaurant and the restaurant was in a converted luxury home which had a converted supper club / hunting lodge ambiance. It was a very beautiful structure, with views over the channel and lush landscaping. We concluded the evening on the Santa Cruz pier. The next day we continued the drive down the coast, stopping at the Monterey Wharf, where we saw harbor seals and otters and where we also had a brief tour of adjacent historic buildings which got a great recommendation from the docent for a restaurant at the Ventana Inn and Spa, where we ate lunch later on down the road. It was a bit up in the hills and had a spectacular view from their patio with good food. The drive along the coast is just fantastic. The roadway is a great winding drive and the scenery is spectacular. There are many turnoffs along the way for views of the coast and photo ops.

If you do the drive I have a few suggestions. Some people had said to rent the Mustang convertible, but we opted not to due to the cost being more than $1,200 more. Instead we rented a compact car, which turned out to be a Nissan Versa Note and a good decision. The weather turned out to be generally in the 60s with a brisk breeze off the ocean and wisps of fog. We saw quite a few Mustang convertibles, but if they had their top down, they also had their windows up and I suspect the heater on. The Note is a small hatchback, but it had plenty of room for us and our luggage. The handling was pretty nimble and it was good fun to drive. I would avoid a mini-van or SUV if you can, as their size would put a damper on the driving fun and make the drive too much work. In fact at one point we passed an accident where one of five Ford Expeditions carrying Chinese or Japanese tourist had crashed and rolled on its side, causing us only a short delay as only one lane was open. The only downside to the Note was there was no cover to hide the luggage, and it could really have used some more power when you needed to get back on the road from a turnout, which was made harder when you could not see far past the curve for coming traffic. One other tidbit is traveling north to south means you don't need to cross traffic to get to the turnouts.

So on the third day we needed to get from our overnight stop in Oceana past Los Angeles to San Diego. We figured we had time for a few stops in Santa Barbara and other places along the way, as long as we kept an eye on Waze so we could get past LA by 3pm. Unfortunately, shortly after we got started on the PCH, we came to an intersection where they had completely closed the highway. The next alternate route into Santa Barbara was the 101. It was also completely closed due to a jack-knifed truck on a bridge. So along with many others we went further inland and were jammed onto the 154. The scenery and road through the hills were beautiful, but we were bumper to bumper in traffic getting to Santa Barbara.

We arrived way later than planned, and just grabbed a fast food lunch and headed onto the main highways to get through L.A. So that entire drive was spent driving mostly on highway traffic, except for one 20 minute stop south of L.A. at Piedras Blancas to see the Elephant Seals. Once in San Diego, Allie spent the day at her convention, and I went down to the San Diego waterfront where I toured the Midway aircraft carrier and walked around. The Midway tour is very interesting and highly recommended if you ever get there. The Harlequin awards was typically corporate, except the attendees are mostly all women, the men are allowed only if the wife is getting an award. So it was about a couple hundred women, with a few husbands and a couple of male corporate types (most of the corporate were also women) and desserts.

Join us for the Montgomery Fest Car show August 14, and the WCZC picnic on August 21. See Larry's column for more info. I am not making it to ZCON this year, so I hope to get an attendee to do a write up for the net newsletter.

As always, to keep up to date with the WCZC please visit our WCZC website and/or Facebook page, as more and more often we post information and photos there on a timely and sometimes real time basis.

Larry Klem, V.P of Activities

Well hello fellow WCZC Members, dang its already August and I've started to see "Back to School" sale ads - a sure sign that we need to get out there and enjoy our cars while we can. Come to think of it, those three words are eerily similar to the worse three words of a young parent's Christmas Eve; "Some Assembly Required".

This article will be, surprising enough, rather short - I know writing is not my strong suit.

This summer has seen some amazing events, WCZC's return to Road America, various Cruise Nights, a fantastically planned (not by me) Road Rally down Rt. 66, a road trip to Dublin OH for this year's Midwest Z Heritage Show where our club won the Club Participation Award among other individual awards. I am pleased to see how the club's events have diversified to serve a wide variety of member's interests. As always, I am open to your suggestions and input for future events.

As the duly designated "chief spammer" for the club, you get a steady barrage of Evites from me; please try to RSVP to those messages as knowing the number of participants helps greatly in planning for events. Turning to the dog days of summer's events I am grateful for the Keca's volunteering their lovely patio and swimming pool for this year's Summer Picnic. Dovetailing on that event, Keith K. is spearheading a morning Rally to Starved Rock and Rick U., our destination expert has volunteered his insight to the local attractions for that trip - thank you guys. I encourage all to participate and enjoy the day with our Z cars (I refer back to my first sentence). I also appreciate Bob & Marlene R. stepping up to suggest some mid-week events, now if we could only get the weather to cooperate this all would be so much easier to manage...

Additionally, there are Evites sent for several Car Shows and Cruise nights - look for more to come. I did want to mention the Orak Shriners show on August 20th. This being my first time attending that show I will only relate what I've heard from other members experience, the show supports a good cause, is fun and laid back in atmosphere and well managed. I personally like the addition of a pig roast, beer garden and A/C'ed hall to cool off in. There is an existing Evite for this event, the Chicago area members are meeting at the Stateline Oasis then caravanning to the show to meet up with our Northern Indiana members. I like the idea of this venue as I look at diversity of club events from both the type of activity to its geographic location, remember that we have members from WI to IN. I'm just glad we can serve more constituencies.

Well, there it is, short and sweet. Enjoy your summer, enjoy your Z Cars and come join us.

Hi Folks,

Since I read in the newsletter that the club was once again having the Z Zone. I found two photos showing the Z Zones signs of the past. The silver 71 240 Z was mine, and we still have it. The sign was painted by my father. That photo was 1981. The second shows a portion of a very large sign in 1982. During those years the club was at all the major races. Often a parade lap.

I still have hundreds of photos starting in 1976 when we joined WCZC. I made an album with hundred of club photos. A number of years ago I was told that a club member claimed that the albums were his and took them. I am not sure what ever happened to them, but they were club property. Maybe someday I will pull out my copy and send them to the club. Also I have all the newsletters starting in 1976 to present.

Now that we retired I have more time to play with our Z's, and all my "Z Stuff"

If anyone wants to check out a place where your Z is protected from moisture, and can be driven 12 months a year.....then visit us in Oro Valley, Arizona (Tucson)
